

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The invention relates to the polycondensation products produced by reaction of bisphenol residues from bisphenol production with an aldehyde in an acidic medium useful for the production of refractory molded bodies, of unmolded substances used in the refractory industry and, together with coating powder residues, as binding agents or binding agent components for the production of molded nonwoven fabric parts.